

Becoming a Coach

An Introduction over 6 Conversations

Develop your coaching capacity; this might be towards training as a professional coach or it might be around developing your current approach to interpersonal professional relationships to achieve optimum effectiveness.

What can I expect from these conversations?

A comprehensive introduction to the world of professional coaching that also reviews 3 core types of coaching application. The programme format is one of pure 1 to 1 coaching, conversation, exploration, discovery, and practice anchored in 1 presentation and 5 best-practice coaching conversations.

Participants can expect to gain absolute clarity as to what is required to achieve effectiveness in coaching. They will have the opportunity of exploring proven coaching models or 'scaffolding' and of considering what might work best for them and why. The programme invites participants to start to develop a personal lexicon and introduces a variety of tools and processes that add value to a coaching intervention. The philosophy is learning by doing.

Participants must have completed one of EquiLearn's Basic Coaching Skills Programmes.

Cost

An all inclusive fee of £900 for 6 x 120 minute conversations, to include all materials. The programme runs between February 1 and November 30, 2014. Sessions are held in an exclusive central London location (Piccadilly Circus tube)
